The Mexican War.

The subjoined memoranda has been placed in our hands by a citizen of the United States very recently from Mexico, and who has spent much time in different parts of that country, the publication of which may not be without use in correcting some errors in the public mind in the United States, if it do not furnish some useful information to those high Civil Officers who are more responsible than the Mexican for the conduct of the war. The ideas of the writer are, of course, entirely his own, our connection with them, being confined to the public Mexico has no means to carry on a war with the United States. I am sorry to see that they labor under such a great mistake, for it is in my opinion that she possesses every necessary to carry on a long and troublesome war with us, under the system upon which it is now going on. It is something like playing a game of poker, you ante a little to "go in," but it takes a great deal to get out. We have ante'd a few troops in Mexico, now, how many will it take to get them out? Mexico will "go better" We shall have to lose them or "go better," or bluffed them off with a good round sum.

"I have been examining the statistical tables published by Mr. Tanner, and find many errors in them. I have resided a number of years in different sections of the country. In the State of Tabasco, for instance, I do not think they raise five hundred bushels of wheat its produce is corn, cotton, tobacco, logwood, sugar, rum and cattle—the latter, sufficient for the whole Mexican army for twenty years—A small army of about 10,000 men, every State of Mexico. Our officers of the Army, if not on the guard, will be led to some great errors with the Travelling Map, copies of which have been supplied to the army, for it contains a great many errors in essential points. Mexico has at all times, men and money to meet us, and over, arms and munitions supplied her by way of Honduras. Her mines give her more copper to make balls of iron than we find in all the guns in the world. Her mines contain over two thousand tons of powder, the city of Mexico over fifty millions of dollars in money or bullion, and the worst in our country is sickness while the Mexican's slaves can live on little more than corn and salt.

"To conquer Mexico, the United States should take a bold front from the present—one less expensive and sooner concluded—otherwise it will not be finished in five years to come. It can be done only as follows. Our the time that Gen. Taylor is marching his army to the Westward, send another army of ten thousand men, under a good General, and the possession of the city of Tabasco, cut off their resources from Yucatan and Chiapas, and March on to the city of Mexico, passing through the States of Vera Cruz, Oaxaca, Puebla, and thence into Mexico, a distance of about six hundred miles, and through the most valuable Departments of Mexico. In taking possession of that valuable State of Puebla, Mexico is cut off from all communication with Vera Cruz and the South eastern States. Gen. Taylor should take possession of Tampico, New Leon, Zacatecas, Jalisco, San Luis Potosi, Guanajuato, Queretaro, and both are fall on the city at once appointed time. If not when Gen. Taylor gets to Monterrey, he will be near the city of Mexico as ever he will get. The next question, how this is to be accomplished, and the winter season coming on in our Gulf, is simply answered thus. Let the Heads of Departments employ experienced Amer. engineers who know the dangers of the Gulf of Mexico, its harbors, rivers and ports, and its language, and fit out proper transports to conduct our brave hearts to fight their country's cause, which will land them in safety—instead of a sloping a parcel of flat boats and dug outts such as our forces have been chattering, and thus risking their own valuable lives and destroying the Government property. The money that has already been expended in this war was sufficient to have whipped Mexico a half dozen times.

"He was with Mexico is not yet begun.

It will cost our Government a great deal of trouble and money, and after all, what do we gain?

"A bankrupt country, with three millions of whites and five millions of dark naked Indians to support, as we are now doing for Texas.

The instruments are pronounced good, and the prices will be fixed sufficiently low to ensure a success.

"The attention of our readers is directed to the advertisement of Pano Fortes, now offered for sale at the Book Store of Wm. Lewis & Co.

The instruments are pronounced good, and the prices will be fixed sufficiently low to ensure a success.

"No papers were received by the mail last evening. If these failures are to occur often, we will suggest that some boat day be taken so that we can get the news by the boat, in stead of being dependent upon the mail.

"Both strength of head and power of mind,

Ability of means, and choice of friends,

To quit us of it thoroughly."

Raleigh (N. C.) Reg

The first Fruits.

Although the new Tariff is not yet in operation its true fruits are already being reaped—it has already effected the value of various articles, among which is iron. The Baltimore American says that Eastern manufacturers, who have heretofore been extensive buyers in that market of Pig Iron at $30 to $32 per ton, are now offering but $25 for the same article. [No definite price, it is true, has as yet been agreed upon, but it is clear that a material reduction must be submitted to.] It further states that in view of this condition of things, and the clouded prospects ahead, the proprietors of all the iron Works in and Baltimore have reduced the wages of their workmen twenty-five per cent.—These works give employment to about two thousand men, whose labor, literally the sweat of the brow, is thus reduced in value by the reckless folly of the party in power.

Is it not Time?

We mentioned a few days since that a portion of the loco party in the western part of the State have declared themselves independent of the leaders, who, at the bidding of Slavery, have destroyed the Protective Tariff which so essentially helped the labor of the country, gave confidence to capital to embark in manufacturing, and infused activity into all branches of business. A similar movement is, we learn, on foot in this city. The leaders have proved false to the welfare of the North, and the truly independent and honest men of their party will not support them. There ought, as a matter of sober justice, correct principle and necessary expediency, to be a large number of such men in every county in the State.

What hurts Them.

Many laboring and many business men in the country, find that since the election of James K. Polk, particularly since the last Congress commenced their legislation, something has hurt them,—something has interposed an obstacle to their prosperity and they naturally inquire what it is. They find the difficulty in the measure which the government has adopted, particularly in the destruction of the protective tariff. They think the sacrifice they are required to make is unnecessary for the honor and welfare of the country, and that the support of political leaders costs too much when such sacrifices are required of them.—The remedy for the evils which have already come upon business and labor and for those now opening up in the future, is to be found in the ballot box. Put in the votes and by them teach the leaders they can no longer lead the people to their own destruction and the country to dishonor and ruin. Put in the votes and cure the cause of the hurt.

The Mexican War.

The subjoined memoranda has been placed in our hands by a citizen of the United States very recently from Mexico, and who has spent much time in different parts of that country, the publication of which may not be without use in correcting some errors in the public mind in the United States, if it do not furnish some useful information to those high Civil Officers who are more responsible than the Mexican for the conduct of the war. The ideas of the writer are, of course, entirely his own, our connection with them, being confined to the public.

Gen. Mejia, who had taken the command of the army which followed Arista in Nacala, had established his head quarters at Monterrey.

Gen. Paredes was to direct his march thither, for which purpose he was to leave the city of Mexico on the 31st of July—making a defour, or detour, after the route de Guadalajara on the 28th of July. It was 2000 strong and had several pieces of artillery.

This brigade, like those who left the capitol before it, was poorly equipped. All these troops, with two or three thousand expected from Guadalajara, united to those under Mejia, it was thought, would give Paredes a force at Monterrey of from 12,000 to 15,000 men.

This long delay in the capitol is attributed to his solicitude that his army should be promptly and properly equipped.

In the city of Mexico there were, at last account, but 1200 troops, and there was some in tentation of raising a volunteer force.

Some troops from the army had arrived at Tampico to reinforce the garrison of that city.

Accident on the Long Island Railroad.

We learn from the N. Y. Tribune that as the day train from Boston was about 33 miles from Brooklyn at 7 o'clock on Wednesday evening, a cow ran across the track just in front of the engine and was thrown off by the eng. catcher, but shd down the bank just beside the track, and, after being passed by the engine and baggage car, was caught by the first passenger car, which was thrown off the track, upsetting the car behind it, and seriously injuring several passengers, one lady it was learned dangerously.

The conductor, Mr. Tucker, was also some what injured, but not so much as to prevent his doing a great deal for the relief and comfort of the sufferers.

All the passengers in the capitol car were more or less injured, but none dangerously but the lady already mentioned, and she it was thought by a physician who was on board, not fatally, though she had a serious gash on her forehead.

All the children on board—twelve or fifteen number—were in the front car and so escaped injury if not death. The cars were nearly destroyed and the rails somewhat torn up, but fresh cars were procured from a depot three miles this side, and all the passengers brought on, reaching the city about 11 o'clock.

The Right Spirit.

The Lowell Courier makes a bold stand for the labor and perseverance of the Yankee, and truly remarks—

"As for New England and Massachusetts, which we must do as well as we can. A French writer says that power is always popular—the rich are grateful to it for what it gives them, and the poor for what it leaves them. The South have taken from us the protection of the law, but let us be thankful that they have left a strong hand, which nothing can break, a stout heart, nothing can discourage, and a habit of labor which nothing can destroy. With these shall go hard, but we will yet get a living, and make money in spite of all effort to prevent it."

The New Tariff.

Already has the cry of Repeal been sounded from the Keystone State, and an enraged, betrayed, and indignant people will seize upon the word, until it shall ring from Maine to Mexico, proclaiming, with an irresistible voice, the measure that sacrifices and breaks down the interests and prosperity, to build up the fortunes of foreign capitalists and foreign governments. We catch up the sound of REPEAL, here in NORTH CAROLINA, and send it back to the people of PENNSYLVANIA—Greeting, and we expect to send two Senators to the United States Senate, who will do all in their power to crush this odious law in the bud.

The spirit is already at work in the land, and a resolution formed, with Damage by Lightning.

The dwelling house of Judge Farrar, on Court street, in this city, was struck by lightning during the shower yesterday morning, causing much damage. The house appears to have been struck in three places on the lead covering the ridge pole, and the course of each of the three streams can be traced throughout the house. In the attic, one of the streams burst a curtain to a glass door, shattered the glass, and melted the bell wire. There were two persons in the attic at the time, but neither of them were injured, although, as one of them expresses it, they seemed enveloped in a flame of fire.

The stream upon the bell wire followed the wires destroying them as it went, and searching the ceiling for a foot wide down to the second story, in one chamber of which it broke a look ing glass, split the head board of a bedstead and passed down into the kitchen.

Here it removed a portion of the plastering on the ceiling directly over the head of one of the domestics engaged in washing dishes, struck her entirely dead, threw a knife from her hand into another room, scattered the knives and forks and dishes, burnt up a curtain, and disappeared.

Another and probably the larger stream in the finish about one of the windows in the attic, scorched some trunks in that vicinity, passed down the partition between the parlor chamber removing most of the plastering and forcing off the lathing and breaking the glasses in five picture frames in the chamber. It then passed down to the parlor where it broke and burnt on a natural lamp sitting upon a centre table smashed the table and scattered the books in all directions. It then descended to the cellar, near through the furnace flues, slightly injuring the furnace and knocking off some of the bricks from the top of the cellar and scattering sever al articles about the room.
